Subject: Microsoft settlement

Letting them use equipment or software to increase market share in education would be a big mistake let them cough up the cash and let the beneficiary of the settlement decide where it is best spent. Unfortunately being second rate on quality is not a crime but is against the American spirit. Teach them a real lesson and make them reveal source code so that people can undo what they want to tweak themselves if you want to put a holly carburetor on your ford minivan ford has no right to stop you... once you pay for it its your car. Once you fork over your fee you deserve to see what you have bought. Developers have a right to information so they can improve things rather than catching the (security hole) horse out the gate
